Star2Star's unique blended architecture combines an on-premise, no-moving-parts PBX system with a suite of services (hosted at their own highly---reliable, redundant data centers).

Star2Star Achieves 100% Uptime for 2011

Star2Star posted a perfect service record of 100% uptime for all of 2011

Sarasota, FL (PRWEB) January 03, 2012 -- Star2Star Communications, makers of "The World's Most Reliable Internet Communications Solution", today announced that the company posted a perfect service record of 100% uptime for all of 2011.

"In a year when many other telecom carriers suffered significant and often lengthy outages, we lived up to our moniker of 'The World's Most Reliable Internet Communications Solution', said Norman Worthington, CEO of Star2Star. "As the business world moves increasingly towards IP communications, reliability becomes a 'bet your life' issue for business customers", he continued.

According to Star2Star Chief Technology Officer Kristian Kielhofner, "Our perfect year didn't happen by accident. We moved and upgraded our main data center and we deployed our Constellation call-routing architecture at seven locations across the US. We made infrastructure a priority, even though it meant slowing development work on other systems."

Star2Star's patent-pending Constellation call-routing technology sends calls over the best possible path, not just the shortest. Constellation can detect and avoid regional Internet congestion points, so calls connect quickly, with the best possible quality, and the least possible delay. If any Constellation node is knocked off line, others pick up the calls automatically; the network heals automatically.

The reliability achievement capped a banner year for Star2Star. During 2011, Star2Star delivered significant new products and features and won several important industry awards. The company was also named to both the Inc. 500 and Forbes Most Promising Companies lists.
